

HAMPTON, PHOEBUS AND OLD POINT.

BANKERS SELECT OFFICERS

J. W. Miller Chosen President of Association at Old Point.

MEETING COMES TO CLOSE

After One of Most Successful and Pleasant Conventions in History of the Virginia Organization, Financial Return Home.

Following the annual election of officers and the presentation of a beautiful silver loving cup to the retiring president, Henry A. Walker, of Staunton, the seventeenth annual convention of the Virginia Bankers Association was brought to a close at Old Point at noon yesterday.

The final session of the association was devoted to the adoption of resolutions of thanks to the Chamberlin Hotel and the local bankers for the entertainment afforded; memorials expressing the sympathies of the association upon the death of members during the past year, and the usual routine business attending such conventions.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor Charles Nagel, of Washington, was unable to come and the address he was to have delivered before the association, was not given.

Chairman D. G. Spencer, of Roanoke, of the committee on nomination of officers, presented the report of the committee, which was unanimously adopted by the convention, naming the following for the coming year:

SOLDIERS' INJURIES RESULT IN DEATH

Frank J. Deal Passes Away in Army Hospital at Old Point.

After making a brave fight for life for three days, Frank J. Deal, the artilleryman attached to the One Hundredth and Sixty-ninth company, who was injured at Fort Monroe Wednesday by an iron rail falling on his head, died in the army hospital at Old Point at an early hour yesterday morning.

The young soldier's mother, Miss Annie Deal, and a brother, John Deal, of Greenwood, S. C., reached Fort Monroe Friday, and were with him when he died. The injury to Deal's head was so serious that the army surgeon from the first had little hope of his recovery and the fact that he lived several days was puzzling to the physicians.

Funeral services were conducted in the hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the remains, accompanied by Mrs. Deal and John Deal, were later sent to Greenwood for burial.

The One Hundredth and Sixty-ninth company attended the funeral services, while each other company at the fort sent a squad of five men to the funeral.

Mr. Deal was just 21 years old and had a promising career as a young soldier before him.
